If you use lots of electricity at home, your next bill may jolt... Florida Power & Light rate hike. New changes have been well publicized, but many don't realize that prices will go UP as consumption rises, not down as before. A bigger share of the burden on the heaviest users. Bills on 750 kwh, up 7 1/2 percent. On 1500, up 19 1/2 percent. On 3000, up 26 1/2 percent.

...Kiplinger Florida Letter

BELLE GLADE—Seems a lot of people are being jolted these days by those rate hikes loaded toward the top and FP&L Office Manager Dale Stapp said things weren't helped any by a longer than normal billing period and temperatures considerably higher than normal.

The result is a 400 to 500 percent increase in the number of billing complaints handled by Stapp's field representative and ten times the number of customers complaining over the telephone or over the counter when they come to pay their bills.

"We've enclosed stuffers in this month's bills explaining the rate increases and how they work," Stapp said, "and we usually explain about what the hotter weather does and that we're billing on a 32-day period instead of the normal 30-day period."

That extra two days, while it may not sound like much, means a 6.6 percent higher bill in itself. And since the air conditioners were working overtime during the time most people are paying for, and an air conditioner is easily the heaviest juice gulper in the average house, that didn't help either.

But the groaner was that rate hike, an increase FP&L asked for but not in the form granted by the Public Service Commission.

FP&L asked the PSC for an across the board 16.1 percent increase for residential electrical consumers and 18 percent for commercial users. They got the commercial rates they asked for but the PSC decided all-electric homes should help carry the load for poorer families who

Swingin' times

A SWINGIN' TIME was the theme Tuesday when Shorty P, otherwise known as Vearl Perkins of 700 West Canal St. South, received a trapeze bar for his bed from the March of Dimes, along with adjustable leg braces for a wheelchair the MOD presented him some time back.

March of Dimes Glades Walkathon Coordinator Jim Huggins (standing) said the gifts were partially in appreciation for Shorty P's services in communicating with traffic during the Walkathon in March over his citizens band radio.

Housing is discussed

SOUTH BAY—Housing...that already in the city and in a decrepit condition, as well as a decided distaste for having any more of the free or subsidized variety in the city, was the subject of a two-hour, sometimes heated, discussion at the city commission meeting Tuesday night.

The meeting started with a complaint by Frank Pierce of the City Zoning Board that the city hasn't been properly enforcing zoning regulations, citing a non-conforming trailer installed behind the Steak 'N Omelet Restaurant on US 27.

"He had a temporary variance for the trailer that ran out on July 18," Pierce told the city commissioners. "He's been living in the trailer and he said he's going to continue living there and he doesn't intend to move it."

City Building Inspector Lomax Harrelle said he had issued the permit for the trailer for the six months, which he confirmed ended on July 18 but he said the owner had told him City Finance Director A.R. Grigsby had approved an extension.

"That's something else I want to ask," Pierce said to the commission, "who's running this city, Grigsby or the council?"

Harrelle said he wasn't going to tell anyone to move their trailers until the commission gives him authority to enforce the ordinances governing zoning.

He said another problem the city has is if the commission specifically orders him to have the trailer removed, the owner can look at many other non-conforming trailers in town, specifically mentioning one at Days Inn and another in the used car lot next to Quick Stop, and ask why the city isn't requiring them to move.

Zoning Board member Byron Walker said what the board wants is for the city commission to affirm they want the ordinances enforced and who will enforce them.

Mayor Don Tanner, after consulting with attorney Nick Wellman, said Harrelle should enforce the regulations according to the city ordinances.

Walker went on to say another problem the city has is dilapidated housing, some inhabited and some vacant, which the city should address.

Showing the commissioners several pictures of old buildings and junked cars, Walker pointed out

APL exams scheduled at GCHS for students who failed in April

BELLE GLADE—The schedule for testing students for the Adult Performance Level (APL) exam at Glades Central on Aug. 17 and 18 was released Wednesday by GCHS Counselor Reginald Murray.

When Glades Central juniors took the exam in April, 114 failed one or more of the five parts of the test. Those who fail to pass in the area or areas they failed in this month or when it is given again next spring won't receive high school diplomas.

Instead of the traditional diplomas, they would receive certificates of attendance, although they would be given the opportunity to make up the exam at any time in the future and earn their diplomas.

Murray said only those students expecting to graduate before June 1978 will be eligible to take the exam. He said those who need to take it are being mailed a notice which indicates which parts they will have to take.

"If they have any question, though," he said, "they should contact the school to find out what they'll have to make up."

Murray said the students expecting to take the exam should bring some form of identification, such as a driver's license, and two number two pencils. He said they should report early enough to read on notices to be posted on campus entrances which room they should report to.

The schedule calls for the section on Community Resources to be administered at 8:30 a.m. Wednesday, Aug. 17 and the section on Occupation Knowledge is to be given at 10 a.m. the same day.

The following day, Consumer Services will be given at 8:30 a.m., followed by Health at 10 and Government and Law at 11:30 a.m.

When the exam was administered in April, 27 students failed all five sections, 13 failed four, 21 failed three, 26 failed two and 27 failed only one.

More GCHS students were familiar with Health than any of the other subjects they were tested on. There were only 37 failures there. In comparison, 58 failed Consumer Economics, 64 failed Community Resources, 67 failed Occupational Knowledge and a whopping 86 failed the Government and Law section.

Chevrolets for Cadillacs isn't the greatest trade

BELLE GLADE—Two Chevrolets sold for Cadillacs led to the arrest Saturday of a local man for larceny of a motor vehicle.

Belle Glade Patrolman Michael W. Brooks reported he arrested Tony Leroy Burnam, 26, of 254 S.W. Eighth St., Apt. 1, following a complaint by Prosper Dorvil, 21, of 513 S.W. Fifth St. that Dorvil had found his stolen car at a local junk yard.

Dorvil reported he had only recently purchased a 1971 Chevrolet and had left it at the home of a friend, Lawrence Logan of 741 S.W. Ave. C, while he did some needed repairs on the car.

Returning Saturday to do some work, Dorvil said his newly purchased car had disappeared and later in the day he found it at the junk yard owned by Happy Johnson at 400 S.W. Ave. B.

Johnson told the police he had bought the car, along with another Chevrolet, from Burnam but hadn't looked at the titles and registrations when he paid $35 for the two vehicles, which he had intended to use as junk.

Brooks said one of the two Chevrolets was identified as the one belonging to Dorvil while the two titles were for Cadillacs. The owner of the second Chevrolet hasn't yet been identified.

Record number of voters registered

A record number of voters could turn out to vote in the Sept. 6 South Bay city election and the Sept. 13 Belle Glade election since Palm Beach County Supervisor of Elections Jackie Winchester reported more voters than ever registered as of Wednesday.

Mrs. Winchester said she had just gotten the final figures on the number of voters registered to vote in Belle Glade, after the books closed Friday, and there are now 5,081 qualified electors in the city. She said there were 4,538 registered to vote in the 1976 election, an increase of 543 over last year.

In South Bay, voters for the first time went over the 1,000 mark, with the latest figure showing 1,007 qualified voters there, having the chance to vote for the last time in September.

The South Bay City Commission passed an ordinance Tuesday which puts the question to the people about whether they want to change the South Bay election day from the first Tuesday in September to the first Tuesday in March.

Should the question pass the referendum, the next city election would be in March 1979, which would allow all commissioners serving as of Sept. 13 another four months.

The election date change was instigated by Commissioner Vernita Cox on grounds there are many people who aren't in town in September who are in March.

Mrs. Cox, Mayor Tanner and Commissioner Woodrow "Woody" O'Neal would serve until March 1979 if the referendum passes. The two commissioners elected on Sept. 6, or Sept. 13 if there is a runoff, would serve until March 1980.

Besides the record number of voters qualified to vote in the two city elections, another unusual facet will be the use of the new Votomatic voting machines, demonstrated Tuesday night by City Clerk Virginia Walker in South Bay.

Mrs. Winchester said she is attempting to work out an educational program to make sure there is a minimum of confusion as possible with the data-card voting system.

Where South Bay has in the past used two of the old-style voting machines, Mrs. Winchester said there would be seven of the new machines this year and while Belle Glade used to use four of the old machines, she said 50 would be made available on Sept. 13.

Mrs. Winchester said Nancy Schmidt, voting equipment manager, would also be in the two cities during their election days and Mrs. Winchester plans to be on hand for the tabulation of votes on the card counters.

For those residents who want practice on the new voting machines, one is available in the South Bay City Hall, the Belle Glade Chamber of Commerce and in each of the banks and savings institutions in Belle Glade.

Mrs. Helen McCormick at the Belle Glade Chamber said there has been an increased interest in the use of the machine over the past two weeks.

Belle Glade voters will also find one other change when they go to the polls. Instead of voting in the traditional fire station, they will have to go to the new fire station in McDonald Park.

Here's how!

"HERE'S HOW to operate the new voting machines when you go to the polls for the Sept. 6 election," South Bay City Clerk Virginia Walker told a crowd of residents on hand Tuesday night for the regular City Commission meeting. Mrs. Walker pointed out the new machines will be used from now on in the Glades and this year's city election is only a forerunner for next year's general election.

When I first came to Belle Glade, over five years ago, the road from South Bay to the city limits was the worst I'd ever been on.

It was lumpy, bumpy, trenchy, and one never knew when an Australian Pine would cast a rotten limb upon passers-by.

But it isn't anymore. Through the efforts of lots of folks in the Glades, including the Canal Hazards Safety Committee, the Lake Okechobee Area Traffic Council, local government officials, and a whole bunch of interested citizens, the way to Belle Glade is now as smooth as silk.

I especially wish to single out for praise the groups who have pushed so hard and worked so diligently to have the road four-laned...the Traffic Council.

Through this group, organized efforts were made to get the state to do something. And enough pressure was brought to bear that something was done.

The members have worked long hours and each and every one of them are to be commended for their jobs well done.

But the fight isn't over yet. Much more remains to be done. Roads in the Glades have to be built on land that is not always the best for roadbuilding and must constantly be maintained and improved.

And the question of roads here is one of vital importance. Not too long ago, I heard one of the top men in the Department of Transportation commenting on the road. He said the coastal areas "get more" because of the larger population. Those that pay the most should get the most, to paraphrase him.

This, to me, is a shortsighted view that does not take into consideration what agricultural areas mean to the more populated regions. As the energy question grows more crucial, and private transportation more expensive, I often wonder if all those great coastal highways will see a decreasing amount of traffic.

Meanwhile, if funds aren't allocated to build a good system of roads in the Glades, and to maintain them once built, local farmers and ranchers will find they must place an ever-increasing portion of their business expense in transportation. Which will mean higher prices to the consumers on the coast.

I'm not saying population centers should be ignored when it comes to roads. What I am saying is that it is in the interests of everyone that agricultural areas have a high priority for road construction and maintenance.

Public transportation will take an increasing share of the land in populated areas. But public transportation doesn't work in rural, agricultural sections of the country. There aren't enough people to subsidize it. Private transportation will continue to carry the load for years to come.

My vision of horror is a great system of concrete highways on the coast lightly traveled while in the Glades, heavily laden trucks grind slowly on the way to market over a road that is choked with traffic.

The long range view is needed in road planning and construction. And we sincerely hope the state will take this into consideration. We're sure the Safety Committee will keep reminding them.

In last month's issue of a well-known outdoor magazine, there was an article on the death of Lake Okechobee.

According to the tone of the article, the only thing that can save Lake Okechobee from becoming a slimy, stinking, foul body of putrid water is the restoration of the Kissimmee River.

While we agree the Kissimmee could be posing a problem, we also note Taylor Creek and Nubbin Slough, overpopulation of fish, and many more areas should be explored before any one drastic measure is taken.

The death march for Okechobee may be premature. Or it may not be. But before we take measures to "kill" what preserves the lake, we should know exactly what those steps will accomplish.

To do less would be to invite even more problems to the lake.

Muck: the Glades' blessing

The possibility Belle Glade may soon be the proud owner of a permanent operating permit for the city sewage treatment plant is probably the best and biggest news the city has received in recent years.

The permit, if it is granted by the state Department of Environmental Regulation, and the probability is high considering its number of approvals or recommendations of county Health Department over the past years, won't be the final answer but it is proof the city is finally getting its act together in the eyes of the Health Department.

The history of problems between the city and the health department is long and checkered, going back to 1972 and the city hasn't had a permanent permit for several years.

Adding to the general problems is the fact there have often been harsh words between the city administration and the Health Department but that time is obviously in the past.

Belle Glade is in the middle of what has been called for a number of people a building boom. Building Inspector Kenneth Retterer reports an increase of more than a million dollars worth of building permits over this time last year and the permanent permit, particularly if and when the city is able to solve the problem of ground water infiltrating the sewer collection system, should boost that building boom considerably.

And that could be part of the answer to the city's year-old housing problem, which could be the end of a number of other problems...such as the number of teachers who start work in the Glades with the sole idea of transferring to coastal schools as quickly as possible.

We've long maintained the Glades' muck soil is the bane and blessing of life here; providing both the living of everybody here directly or indirectly, and affecting the quality of that life in virtually anything one cares to name.

We have a teacher shortage because teachers don't want to teach in a place where it's almost impossible to find adequate housing. We have a housing shortage because it's difficult to get more sewer connections and the Health Department has banned septic tanks in all but the most unique instances.

It's difficult to obtain new sewer connections because the sewer plant for some time hasn't been performing up to state standards. The sewer plant hasn't performed up to state standards because it's been inundated by ground water infiltrating the collection system.

And the ground water infiltrates the collection lines because Belle Glade, South Bay and Pahokee are virtually unique in that the sewer lines are by necessity installed below the water table.

Which goes right back to the soil.

...and its bane

The soil was also the reason for another bit of news last week that wasn't so good.

Included in the great news of the end of work on four-laning SR 80 from South Bay to the Glades Office Building, and the beginning of plans for the official opening, members of the Canal Hazards Safety Committee also heard there were no improvements to the brand new rollercoaster north of Airport Road.

The combination of the road setting and a series of drive-ways already compacted enough to prevent settling have teamed up to provide an amusement park ride effect guaranteed to force anyone with a queasy stomach to lose his or her breakfast on the way back from the courthouse.

And as newly elected Canal Hazards Safety Committee Chairman Marvin Unwin pointed out, if it's like that before the road is officially opened, it ought to rank right up there with the best rollercoasters in the country by the time the cane trucks start using it.

The only saving grace is that we won't have to pay any extra for the thrilling ride...at least not more than the extra fees generated by replacing the occasional shock absorbers and the odd spring here and there.

Because Frank Weatherholt, who has shepherded the construction projects for the Department of Transportation, gave the committee members little hope for any improvement in the situation, saying he assumes the road will be resurfaced in a year or so, possibly when the new stretch east of Hooker Highway is completed, always assuming that project is ever completed.

Perhaps the DOT has finally learned a lesson about the construction of roads in the Glades, however. As everyone who's lived in Western Palm Beach County more than three hours was already aware, the best road out here is SR 715 and as most of us are aware, SR 715 was simply floated on top of the muck rather than digging out or all the muck and backfilling it with rock.

But floating the road on the muck wasn't how SR 80 was four-laned, thank you. The experts used the results of their half-mile experimental strip where SR715 dead-ends into SR 80 to come up with the formula of scraping out only three feet of muck and backfilling only that portion.

And to quote Bud Weaver, "They probably only backfilled three feet to save money but if they wanted to save money, why demuck at all?"

Former Committee Chairman Franklin Jones is writing a letter on behalf of the committee protesting the method of construction and asking the DOT to consider floating any future roads which may be built.

Considering the washboard road we have already, before the road is even officially opened, that is mild action indeed. State Senator Phil Lewis and State Representative Tom Lewis, both instrumental in getting the four-laning of SR 80 started, once promised to rollercoaster from South Bay to West Palm Beach once the entire project is completed.

We advised them at the time they'd better pack those rollercoasters well in cosmoline because it appeared it would be a long time before they were needed.

Now, we sorta hope they wait until after at least one resurfacing job is done before they break out their skates.

We'd hate to lose two of the best representatives the Glades has ever had in the state legislature because of an

CRACKER CRUMBS

BY DEAN JONES

Do I have to take this kind of abuse? Mama and the professors at the University of Florida College of Journalism always told me there'd be all kinds and any number of complaints, gripes, slurs and threats against my general health and the life of my body.

Okay, I was ready for her when the subject of a recent Cracker Crumbs column, enraged over the truthful narration of certain recent events walked up to me the day the paper came out and told me, "You are a dead son-of-a-bitch (watch it, lady! This is a family newspaper)."

But when someone tells me they have a movie related to the occupation which earns my daily bread, and then shows me a film about manure spreaders...well, that's carrying things just a bit far.

I guess I'll have to admit to a certain predilection (didn't I think I knew that one, didn't I?) toward extending the rock-hard crystallized facts just a wee tad but to insinuate the content of this column is anything more or less than the truth, well, just who the heck does this guy think he is?

And the remark just made...I mean since I put that last paragraph on paper. One who will remain nameless, not to protect the innocent but simply because I have no wish to incorporate the guilty, walks in and finds me laboring over this column.

"Who's the victim this week?" is hardly what I'd call a justifiable comment about a serious journalistic effort and exploration of the literary world.

Nor do I really need an ant flow of comments about the "eat shot of his nose" as a responsible criticism of my photographic abilities when it comes to horses. Some people just don't appreciate the art of photography.

Yea, verily, grief, trial and tribulation is the lot of an editor, and I don't get no respect, either. Sometimes it's enough to make me wonder who I give up to.

Although I will have to go along with Will Rogers that a newspaper the first place to go when you want a laugh...and Cracker Crumbs were a combined treasure trove of hilarity.

Like the bank robber who told the teller, when she said she couldn't fork over the cash, "I've showed her a gun." "What do you, think, I'm crazy?" I'm not going to take a chance on another 15 years if I get caught.

Now, that guy had the wrong attitude, anyway. How the heck did he expect to pull off the caper when he goes in expecting to be nailed? The kicker came a few minutes later though, when he walked into another bank and actually pulled it off, sans gun.

If the teller had happened upon a similar bank job I'd read about a few days before, I would've sworn it was the same heist artist. That guy didn't have a gun either but when the teller said she couldn't come up with the cash, he threatened her with death and destruction, he told her to wait there; not to go away and he'd be right back with one.

Apparently, the teller didn't have any pressing engagements, so she waited right there in her cage until the guy came back with his piece. Unfortunately for the robber, a cop was waiting too.

Take that but it wasn't quite as bad as the case of the gunman who walked into the savings and loan association.

The news article didn't say, but apparently someone thought he was still using a toy gun. He was automatic isn't the most deadly looking weapon in the world or it was unloaded.

So this cold-blooded act of cowardice demonstrates the gun is real and loaded by shooting his finger off. The last I heard the police had the man's finger and were checking prints. Only thing I'd like to know, is how they expected to compare the finger-prints when he was minus the finger the print was on.

Then there was the guy I think it was in Miami (where else?) That place is almost as full of kooks as California) who was given the job of salvaging a bulldozer.

He must be a gambler because he's supposed to get $10,000 if he comes up with the dozer; and nothing if he doesn't.

Oh, by the way, the tractor is completely submerged in a pool of what can be delicately referred to as...ah...human waste.

And it comes full circle.

Women's Softball action

Wallis Pharmacy still leads

By Karen Hansford

The team of Glades Sugar won its second game of the season and Wallis Pharmacy stretched its lead to three games with a 16-5 triumph over second place Local 2152 in women's slow-pitch softball action last week.

Both of the games were played in a doubleheader last Thursday at the Little League-Jaycee ballpark. Rhonda Miller knocked in one of two runs with a double for Glades Sugar in the first inning and scored on Rosa Goodbread's sacrifice to right field. The "Sugar" batters hit two singles and took advantage of five walks for seven more in the top of the second inning, then South Bay Growers came back with a run by Glenda Norwood.

South Bay added four in the third-inning after holding Glades Sugar, with Susan Moss slamming a double into left-centerfield for two RBIs. The fourth inning was a standoff, then Judy Snyder doubled into left field and went home on Barbara Sniffen's single to give Glades Sugar 10 runs.

Judy Johnson and Susan Moss rounded the bases for South Bay in the bottom of the inning to edge within three runs, but Glades Sugar broke the game open with seven in the next inning and held the South Bay batters to nothing to win the game, 17-7.

Brenda Miller and Gail Hartwick were credited with doubles in the last inning for Glades Sugar. The team was forced to play with nine members when second baseman Michelle Beasley was sidelined in the sixth inning with a leg injury.

In the second game, Wallis Pharmacy rallied for 11 runs in the fourth inning to blast Local 2152 16-5 in five innings of play. Up to that point, the game was close, with both teams concentrating on defense.

Wallis opened the scoring with two runs in the first inning when Sharon Clayton and Karen Hansford crossed the plate on Cheryl Waters' double, her first of two in the game. Local 2152 pushed a run across when Sara Rives went home on a fielder's choice as Barbara Morgan was forced out at second base. Wanda McMillan flied out to shortfielder Doris Velez for the third out. The score was tied in the second inning when Barbara Hartzog rounded the bases.

Both teams played tight defense in the third inning, allowing no score. Donna Garcia of Local made a superb catch off Cheryl Waters' line drive to prevent a base hit.

The Wallis batters broke loose in the fourth inning as Annette Davis, Rhonni Cox, Frances McLeod, Bonnie Merklinger and Jayne Meadows each got singles and Waters hit another double for 11 runs. Davis, who went three-for-four, including two doubles, smashed a ball into left-centerfield for two bases.

Three more runs came in the fifth inning for Wallis to put the game out of reach despite a rally by the Local offense in the last inning. The team threatened as the runners loaded the bases after making three runs, but Jayne Meadows snagged a fly in left field for the final out.

The win was Wallis Pharmacy's tenth against one loss while Local 2152 dropped to seven wins and four losses.

Local 2152 stomped Glades Sugar 13-2 in softball play on Tuesday, July 26.

Glades Sugar maintained a two to nothing lead for three innings on runs by Judy Snyder and Gail Hartwick before Local tied the game in the fourth with two runs. The Glades Sugar fielders made some fine defensive plays to stop Local in the first half of the game, but the Local girls warmed up and went ahead in the fifth inning with four runs and tallied up four in the sixth and three in the seventh for 13, while holding Glades Sugar to only one more run in the sixth inning.

The second game found Wallis holding back a rally by the Miami Herald girls in the final moments of the game to protect a 9-6 victory. Ronnie Pike rifled a line drive into right field for two of Wallis' three runs in the first three innings. Miami Herald scored in the top of the third inning on Theresa Wilkerson's run.

Wallis added four runs on four singles in the fourth for a total of seven, then Miami Herald bounced back with a four-run surge in the fifth to edge within two runs. Michelle Jordan smashed a double down the middle for two of the runs.

Annette Davis, Doris Velez and Donna Aikin added three in the bottom of the fifth for Wallis, then the team held the Miami Herald offense to one by Kay Ginery to hold onto the win.

Glades Women's Softball Standings as of 8/1/77: Wallis Pharmacy, 10 wins and one loss; Local 2152, seven wins and four losses; South Bay Growers, five wins and six losses; Dixie Fried Chicken and Miami Herald, four wins and six losses; Glades Sugar, two wins and nine losses.

BELLE GLADE—Those big bass continue to offer local fishermen a challenge, however, bluegill and shellcracker fishermen reported lots of action over the week and especially on live crickets and beetle spins.

Richard Gill of Belle Glade took his limit of 50 bluegills on Friday. Bobby and Abby Peacock of Belle Glade, used crickets and worms on Sunday to take their limits of bluegill and shellcrackers.

Belle Glade fishermen Cora and Al Proper and Charles Eddy report a three week total of over 14 bluegills on crickets.

Joe and Fae Gilliam of Belle Glade used crickets to take their limits of bluegills three times over the weekend.

Bass fisherman Donnie Herring of Belle Glade used a black worm on Friday to take a seven pound bass.

Gerry Propst and Rick Tate of West Palm Beach brought in two nice ones on Thursday at 9 1/4 and 8 3/4 pounds.

Joe and Billy Brewer of Belle Glade, used plastic worms to take their limits of nice bass on Sunday morning.

Mike Miller and Nick Pavlakovic of Boca Raton both took their limit of bass and about 30 bream all on Fly Rods on Sunday.

Herald girls bowed to Badcock's of Okeechobee by one run Saturday morning. They avenged the loss that evening by easily handling the Brighton Seminoles to advance into Sunday's games. Meanwhile, Local 2152 lost to the Spirits, then downed the Tim Sheds of Okeechobee, 10-7 and won a forfeited game by Badcock's to qualify for Sunday's 8:30 a.m. match against The Miami Herald. The forfeit came because of an illegal player. She wasn't on the team's roster.

Although it was their third game of the day, the girls held their own in the finale against the undefeated Spirits, holding a two-run lead in the first couple of innings before the Spirits finally scored. The Spirits ended up taking the game and the tournament but not without a fight as Miami Herald held them to 10-4.

for a Better Tomorrow

Working, learning to sew... Now, something simple is being prepared and soon her own dresses, and in the future, clothing for her own family. Training is important in the lives of our children.

Spiritual training is a must in the lives of our young ones.

"Train up a child in the way he should go; and when he is old, he will not depart from it."

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

"People think we're the ones soliciting funds over the telephone," Miller said Monday, "and we don't have anything to do with the county PBA."

He said the members of the local organization decided long ago they would only have one fund-raising event a year: the annual Policeman's Ball.

"We've had excellent support from the residents with the ball," Miller said, "and the only thing we use the funds for is to buy some

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:
The Federal Insurance Administration gives notice of the proposed determinations of base flood elevations (100-year flood) for the City of Belle Glade, Florida, in accordance with Section 110 of the Flood Disaster Protection Act of 1973 (P.L. 93-234), 87 Stat. 980, which added Section 1363 to the National Flood Insurance Act of 1968 (Title XIII of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 P.L. 90-448), 42 U.S.C. 4001-4128, and 24 CFR Part 1917.

These elevations together with the flood plain management measures required by Section 1910.3 of the program regulations are the minimum that are required. They should not be construed to mean the community must change any existing ordinances that are more stringent than the minimum that are required. The community may at any time enact stricter requirements on its own, or pursuant to policies established by other Federal, state or regional entities. These proposed elevations will also be used to calculate the appropriate flood insurance premium rates for new buildings and their contents for the second year of insurance on existing buildings and contents.

The proposed 100-year flood elevations for selected locations are:

BILLS

from P1

FP&L's rate structure had been followed that would have meant a bill of $30.24. In what Stapp referred to as the "average" home, which uses 2,000 kwh, however, FP&L's request would have raised the monthly bill from $61.87 to $71.85. Because the PSC decided the average user would pay rates 22.9 percent higher, his bill will actually be $76.05.

And so it goes to the home that uses 4,000 kwh, whose owner will pay $152.97 instead of the $119.21 he would have paid last month or the $138.43 he could have expected to pay under the FP&L recommendation. That's a whopping 28.3 percent raise instead of the 16.1 percent hike FP&L asked for.

None of the above figures, by the way, include franchise fees, fuel adjustment or local utility taxes and the Belle Glade utility taxes alone add another ten percent to the bill.

"And what are Stapp and his men doing about the complaints coming in?"

"The first thing we do," he said, "if they feel they've been overcharged, is to have someone go out and check their meter to be sure they're being charged the correct amount. We also encourage them to take a booklet we have on how to conserve electricity."

While Stapp was talking, a local businessman walked into the office and picked up a fistful of the booklets FP&L has had printed, entitled, "How to Save Money On Your Electric Bill."

The booklet, as Stapp pointed out, simply highlights common sense methods the average Florida homeowner can use to reduce power consumption.

One of the best ways pointed out by Stapp and the booklet, and is itself the subject of another entire booklet, is to make sure your home is adequately insulated. Stapp said some people have gone so far as to say FP&L should finance and install insulation.

The long range answer, Stapp said, as he has said numerous times over the past months, is going to have to be conservation, not more production, of energy.

"What we need is a national energy policy," he said, "but the package before the House now is not what we'd like to see adopted." He said the energy bill has a number of provisions, such as stricter federal regulations and the mandatory conversion of all oil-fired power plants to coal by 1980, which private power producers can't live with.

Stapp said he believes FP&L and other companies will eventually go to coal-fired generating plants but the cost of converting existing plants would amount to more than half the company's present investment.

But conservation, he repeated, is the only real answer.

"The company is in the business of producing and selling electricity," he said, "but we realize we can't continue to efficiently provide sufficient power without conservation. Each house is continuing to use more and more electricity, besides the additional demands made by new homes."

"We're firmly convinced," Stapp said, "there is an energy crisis. It is upon us but it's going to get worse. There is a finite amount of fuel as we know it and we can't go on using it up the way we have been."

Housing

there are a number of old houses without windows or doors which the owners should be forced to either repair or demolish.

"I don't think we can tolerate this situation," Walker said. "A lot of these houses are being rented and if we don't take steps to let these people know the city wants them to do something about their buildings, they'll just keep on rolling and collecting the rent."

He said there is a chance some of the buildings which can be repaired may qualify under the Community Development Program funds the city is attempting to get this year. If that's the case, those homes could be repaired either at no cost to the owners or on long term, low interest loans.

Commissioner Vernita Cox said she hadn't known the discussion on condemnation would come up but since it had, she wanted to ask Palm Beach Housing Authority Director Barry Seaman, who she'd asked to be present for another reason, whether the PBHA could accept any of the tenants in the dilapidated housing into the 66-unit South Bay Housing Project.

She said that when the PBHA first approached the city about working with the county agent to build the project, the commission had been assured people from South Bay would have first chance at the apartments.

"Another thing we were told," she went on, "was that the empty property behind the project would be developed as a recreational area for the children living there. Now, I'm told it's becoming a disposal area for broken down bicycles and other junk."

"I'm also told," she continued, "the City of Belle Glade has refused to allow a similar project there and we are getting people from Belle Glade in the housing project here. How can this be?"

Seaman said there would be a chance South Bay residents now living in decrepit housing would be able to get housing in the project but they would have to wait their turn. He said approximately 300 families are now on the list.

"And we can't refuse someone because they don't live in South Bay," he said. "We have to consider them even if they send their application from across the country. That's the law."

He said the Department of Housing and Urban Development, which provides funding for the project, requires no discrimination against someone because they don't live in the city.

Seaman also told Mrs. Cox that Belle Glade has its own housing authority, which has nothing to do with HUD. He pointed out it is funded through Farm Home Administration and the authority now owns most of the property.

Concerning the three-acre plot of land behind the project, Seaman said the property is now tied up in court, with the authority having no chance to do anything with it. "We can't even cut the grass," he said, "but we are paying taxes on it."

Seaman told the commissioners he would like to meet with them in the near future to discuss the possibility of locating another PBHA housing project in or near South Bay in about two years, sparking a general rumble of disapproval from the commissioners and the audience.

Saying he spoke for himself and not for the commissioners, Harrelle asked Seaman if he could show him any reason, from a business standpoint, why the city should go along with a project which would take tax money out of the city treasury and give in return little but the problems of providing city services such as police protection and water and sewer.

Several people in the audience echoed Harrelle's sentiments as he spoke and Mayor Tanner asked virtually the same question, with Commissioner Jay Smith pointing out that housing would only bring in more people when South Bay residents are already having a hard time getting jobs.

Seaman said he could understand the problems such an additional development would cause the city but said housing was needed for the people the commissioners had been discussing earlier who are now living in dilapidated housing.

"But what good will it do them," Commissioner Cox asked him, "if you build the project and they don't get an apartment there? We were promised when the project that's already here was being planned South Bay would get priority and that doesn't mean anything."

When Seaman asked to talk to the commission during a workshop Tanner said the city might be willing to discuss it with him, depending on whether planned improvements to the city water and sewer system are completed and what kind of drain on city resources the project would be.

Chosen may get CD program

CHOSEN-Carrying on a project terminated when he was director of Belle Glade Community Development (CD) Program, Gartner, who now heads making such inroads into Florida as reported and documented by the Miami Herald. Shevin devoted as much effort to that problem as he does to the housing industry?

As Shevin shifts into high gear in his gubernatorial campaign, it's his opinion he's using his office of Attorney General above and beyond the normal political spring board concept.

It's inconceivable he can pander to the growing voting bloc of retirees by attempting to close down the housing industry while at the same time ignoring all other issues.

"Is Shevin the best the people of Florida can serve up as gubernatorial material for our great state-when there are others better qualified and far more dedicated to the public good? If so, we're in a lot of trouble."

George Bergmann, Chairman Florida Builders and Developers Council

the same program for Palm Beach County said there is a possibility Chosen may get some $100,000 worth of improvements in the near future.

Gartner said Wednesday the project is still in the very early planning stages and nothing concrete has been decided by he and County CD Capital Improvements Coordinator Doug Dawson, together with the Citizens' Advisory Committee, have decided approximately $100,000 worth of improvements need to be done.

Gartner said the work falls into the areas of improvements of streets and water and sewer systems.

He said he and Dawson, who was in his position when Gartner was with the City of Belle Glade, first began talking about improvements in Chosen when Gartner was still with the city.

One idea they considered, and said they are still considering, is a joint project to be worked out between the county and Belle Glade CD departments, largely because of the disorganized city limits in the Chosen area.

They both emphasized Wednesday, however, the possibility of a joint project is only that, a possibility, and they've made no official overtures to the city.

Gartner did say, however, he approached City Manager Robert R. Sanders and Public Works Director Ron Sigmon. "I didn't get any adverse comments and Ron went so far as to give us a drawing of what was there."

2 egg whites 1 tsp. vanilla
1/8 tsp. cream of tartar 3/4 cup super fine sugar
1/8 tsp. salt 1/2 cup chocolate chips
1/2 cup chopped nuts [Optional]

Preheat oven to 300°. Beat egg whites, cream of tartar and salt together in a small bowl until soft peaks form. Add vanilla. Add sugar gradually, beating until stiff. Fold in chocolate chips and nuts.

Drop by teaspoonfuls 2 inches apart on greased brown wrapping paper laid on a cookie sheet. Bake until dry, about 25 minutes. Let cool slightly before removing from paper. Set on rack to cool completely before storing in airtight container. Makes about 3 dozen.

You could add 2 or 3 drops of food coloring to mixture before baking, if you wish.

Pahokee Chamber meeting set

PAHOKEE—The Pahokee Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors held their regular monthly meeting in the Chamber Office on the evening of Monday, August 1st with Doug Potter, president presiding.

A letter from the chamber's past president, Mr. Arthur Nagler, congratulating the chamber on their successful effort in getting Pahokee removed from the Flood ledged. Director-Mayor Padgett agreed with Nagler, and added that in his estimation, this project was one of the most worthwhile issues that the chamber had ever been involved in. Padgett said that few people realize how much money the city, along with citizens and business, will save by this re-evaluation.

Director Rev. R. West reported on his recent attendance at a Belle Glade Chamber Meeting concerning an upcoming Royal Palm Festival and it was announced that a new supply of postcards depicting scenes of Pahokee are on sale at the Chamber Office.

A letter of resignation was regretfully accepted from Director Arthur Nagler. Doug Potter reported that he will appoint committee chairmen at the next meeting of the directors on Monday, August 29th.

Quote was incorrect

BELLE GLADE—The Belle Glade Herald incorrectly quoted last week a comment by Leitha Young, director of Community Schools in the Glades, a statement to the Belle Glade City Commission that he had originally requested $4,760 to operate the Lake Shore gym under Community Schools for 12 weeks.

Young actually said he had originally requested $4,657 to operate the gym for 12 months. The Herald regrets any inconvenience caused by the accident.

He is a former Pahokee businessman, and until recently was a barber. He says that his main hobby right now is just trying to establish himself as a good representative of Carter Chevrolet.

Edwards invited all his friends and neighbors to stop by Carter Chevrolet and visit with him and look at the new cars.

Good driver program is unfair and unworkable

By Bill Gunter

One portion of the new automobile insurance reform law is currently "catching the devil," and deservedly so. The so-called "good driver" incentive program is now under fire not only from motorists but also from law enforcement, judges and local-county officials. Personally, I have asked for a special session of the Legislature to repeal the fund.

I've maintained from the start that this program was an abomination.

It's fine in principle—rewarding good drivers—but the plan as passed by the Legislature is virtually unworkable. To qualify for a rebate under the program, you have to be free of any traffic violations over the previous year and also have to carry full liability insurance protection, even though it is not mandated by the law. At present, however, the state has no record of who has liability insurance and who doesn't. To make the incentive program work, the state would have to establish a whole new record-keeping system. This and other expenses associated with the program would consume, according to our best estimate, up to two-thirds of all money collected, leaving very little to be divided among those drivers who do qualify for the incentive awards.

The incentive program's provision which increases moving traffic violation fines from $25 to $57.75 to provide refund money for "good drivers" has also come under fire from law enforcement officials in recent weeks as being unfair and excessive.

The number of traffic citations issued has dropped-up to 50 percent in some areas—apparently due to officers' reluctance to issue such stiff penalties for minor traffic violations. This sharp drop has county administrators upset, because traffic fines contribute significantly to the operating expenses of county government, especially the court system. The incentive program has also received severe criticism from the courts. County judges in several counties throughout the state have ruled it unconstitutional.

The program is certain to end up in the state Supreme Court where it will, I believe, be finally declared unconstitutional. The goal of the incentive program—rewarding good drivers—is commendable, but the way that it is attempted is grossly unfair and unworkable.

It fully deserves the "devil" it's catching.

Citrus trees subject to disease

By Gene Joyner
Urban Horticulturist
Palm Beach County

Lately, with our damp, rainy weather, many people that have citrus and other fruit trees seem to be experiencing an increase in the amount of disease problems. A few types of fruit are also splitting or aborting and in most cases this is a normal occurrence at this time of year and should not alarm the homeowner.

Citrus many people have noticed, at the leaves are dropping more than usual and many of them have greasy-looking spots or lesions on the back of them. Also, on some of the developing fruit there may be warty or knob-like projections on the peel. Both of these conditions are the result of fungus infection and many times by the time you notice them it is already too late to correct for that season. In the case of unsightly fruit, this disease, which is called scab, has to be controlled when the fruit is first forming in the late spring. Generally, sprays of copper at the time the fruit has just formed and before it reaches pea size will help to keep this scab fungus from infecting your fruit.

Most of the time the disease only affects the peel of the fruit and has no effect on the quality of edible parts of the fruit. Scab fungus also can be found on the foliage where it causes distortion and primarily this is a problem on new or recently expanded leaves.

For scab fungus on foliage it is important to time your sprays of copper to correspond with flushes of new leaves. Here in our area citrus generally puts out a flush of new growth in February-March, May-June, August and October.

The other fungus which is prevalent, greasy spot, is an unsightly lesion on the older leaves primarily. It can also be controlled with copper sprays so it is not necessary to use different types of chemicals for each separate disease.

Trees that are being over-watered or are in poorly drained soils may, at this time of year, show signs of collar rot or various other types of fungus diseases on the lower trunk. These diseases cause the bark to split or crack and if this completely girdles the tree then, of course, the top portion will die.

Any time that bark is noticed to be cracking, splitting, or coming off on any portion of the tree, that area should be cleaned as thoroughly as possible of the diseased bark and then a spray of copper fungicide should be applied to the areas. After the copper spray has had time to dry, it would be advisable to coat the wounded area with a pruning compound commonly available at garden supply stores. Some types of citrus, mangoes and other fruit trees are also experiencing a lot of fruit splitting at this time of year and most of it is caused by our summer weather conditions. As fruit matures it becomes less pliable and with fluctuations in internal water pressure you will get an increased chance of the rind or outer skin cracking or splitting.

Overwatering at this time of year will aggravate this situation so I would advise not watering at all unless you have extremely sandy, well-drained soil or we have a dry period lasting more than two weeks.

Whiplash injuries can be reduced, says FHP

TALLAHASSEE—Whiplash injuries received in rear and traffic collisions can be reduced by proper adjustment of auto head restraints said today.

Colonel Eldridge Beach, Patrol director said, "Studies have shown that in the last five years, 70 to 85 percent of the cars equipped with adjustable head restraints have them improperly adjusted. Most of the restraints were left in the down position."

Records for 1976 indicate that rear end crashes were the leading type with 62,062. Of these, 23,481 caused injuries and there were 64 fatal rear end crashes. It would be safe to say that large number of the injuries were neck and back injuries caused by the head restraint being too low to stop the victims head from snapping over the seat top.

The director explains that head restraints should be adjusted upward so that the center of the pad is at approximately mid-ear level.

Beach adds that the adjustment of a head restraint "requires very little effort, and even in a minor rear end collision, it could mean the difference between coming out of the crash unhurt or suffering a disabling injury."

Letter to the Editor

Gentlemen:
Please express my deepest thanks to two most considerate gentlemen.

A few days ago while I was swimming in the Rim Canal with my dog TG, a boat with two men in it passed, then turned around. I thought, "What are they up to now?"

As the boat stopped alongside, one of the men said, "Lady, you had better get that dog out of this water. There's a lot of alligators in here."

Such deep concern for the safety of animals depicts the finest qualities in a person. I extend my heartiest thanks to those two blacks.

Thank you.

Sincerely,

Hypertension is a very significant cause of heart attack and stroke. It is called the silent killer because there may be no symptoms. But once detected, high blood pressure can be controlled.

Have your blood pressure checked free Tuesday, August 2 at one of the participating fire stations. This is a continuing program offered the first Tuesday of every month by the High Blood Pressure Council and the Palm Beach County Fire Chiefs Association.

Blood pressures will be checked from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. at the Belle Glade Fire Station, 33 W. Avenue "A."
